12/29 Fourth Symposium on Peaceful Development of Cross-strait Relations held in Shanghai

The Shanghai Institute of Taiwan Studies, Shanghai Taiwan Studies Society and editorial department of "Tai Hai Yan Jiu" magazine co-sponsored the 4th Symposium on Peaceful Development of Cross-strait Relations in Shanghai. The symposium was joined by experts, scholars and other guests from both sides of the Taiwan Strait. The theme of the symposium was "New Pattern of Developments in the Taiwan Strait." Participants discussed two sub-topics, including "New Developments in Taiwan Elections and New Change in Cross-Strait Relations" and "Use of New Media by the New Generation in Taiwan." Shanghai Institute of Taiwan Studies director Yu Xintian stated in a speech that the development of peace between the two sides is still the mainstream public opinion on both sides. He also noted that peaceful development has many stages and many new characteristics that everyone needs to think about.

1/1 Visa on arrival launched for Kinmen, Matsu and Penghu Mini Three Links travel

As of January 1, 2015, mainland tourists visiting Kinmen, Matsu and Penghu, can apply for a temporary stay permit at the time of entry. The permit, commonly known as a "visa on arrival," costs NT$600 and can be applied for online in advance for NT$200. The new policy makes mainland tourist travel to visit Kinmen, Matsu and Penghu more flexible and fast. About 6,000 such trips were made each month over the past three months. The policy is expected to boost the monthly number to more than 70,000.

1/1 Mainland enacts revised Environmental Protection Act

Mainland China brought its amended Environmental Protection Act into effect on January 1 this year. The revised act aims to reverse a trend of environmental degradation due to the mainland's rapid economic development. After four reviews, the amended act was passed by the Eighth Session of the Standing Committee of the 12th National People's Congress on April 24, 2014. Environmental protection experts believe that the amended act may become the mainland's strictest administrative law. The revised act further clarifies the environmental protection supervision and management responsibilities of the mainland public sector, strengthens the red line for ecological protection, sets limits on the total amount of pollutants, and calls for environmental monitoring and environmental impact assessments, inter-administrative region prevention efforts and other basic environmental protection systems. The act increases the pollution control responsibilities of enterprises and stiffens legal penalties for breaking environmental laws. It also calls for stronger environmental protection promotion, heightened public environmental awareness, protections for informants, and the expansion of bodies for environmental public interest litigation.
